

Mercer Law Review

---

Volume 72
Number 4 Eleventh Circuit Survey

Article 3

---

7-2021

Editor's Note

Jameson M. Fisher

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcommons.law.mercer.edu/jour\_mlr

---

Recommended Citation

Fisher, Jameson M. (2021) "Editor's Note," Mercer Law Review. Vol. 72 : No. 4 , Article 3.
Available at: https://digitalcommons.law.mercer.edu/jour\_mlr/vol72/iss4/3

This Front Matter is brought to you for free and open access by the Journals at Mercer Law School Digital Commons. It has been accepted for inclusion in Mercer Law Review by an authorized editor of Mercer Law School Digital Commons. For more information, please contact repository@law.mercer.edu.

Editor's Note

by Jameson M. Fisher*

The Mercer Law Review annually publishes the Eleventh Circuit Survey as the fourth book of each volume. With four being a number very special to me, this book means that much more. The Survey reviews a range of new, burgeoning, and noteworthy topics in the federal law covering the Eleventh Judicial Circuit, including its district courts in Georgia, Florida, and Alabama.

This year, the Law Review was tasked with an entirely new and independent executive board taking up the mantle in the middle of a global pandemic. Thanks to the hard work, adaptability, and grace of every member of the Law Review, as well as our outstanding authors, both new and returning, the Eleventh Circuit Survey is once again publishing. I am in awe of the skillful navigation by our team and authors through the difficult, and often unexpected, series of events we faced this year.

I would like to thank our Editor in Chief, Lauren James, for her continued work and leadership, and our Managing Editors, Caroline Walker, Breanna Vega, and Madison Gann, for their acumen, assistance, and commitment to form each article and student publication to their best. I would like to give special thanks to Sharon Bradley and Billie Jo Kaufman for their indefatigable dedication to the Law Review and the invaluable resources they proved to be during this transitional period. To Jackson Griner, my wise predecessor and dear friend: this book would not have been possible without you.

Finally, I would like to thank each member of the Mercer Law Review for the body of work they have produced this year and the vigor with which they produced it. While none of us knew this process would take quite the anomalous turn it did, their brilliant teamwork nevertheless made this a success. Cheers.

---

* Eleventh Circuit Survey Editor.