A Decision You Can Make ONLY ONCE

For over 170 years this country has been operating successfully under a system of free enterprise, individual opportunity, and liberty. We are the envy of everyone everywhere.

Now there are some who say we've been on the wrong road. They want to change everything. They want government to control the individual as well as business.

This is contrary to our fundamental concepts of liberty and freedom, as guaranteed by the constitution.

Similar changes have been tried in other parts of the world with disastrous results.

America has already gone far down the road toward statism. You must decide where to stop if you are going to pass any opportunities on to your children or your successors.

We believe there would be no danger of a swing away from free enterprise if everyone understood the simple facts—that the better an individual or business serves, the better it succeeds.

But keep this in mind—once the decision is made to renounce our present system, there is no turning back.

Government is best which governs least and it's later than you think!
